Bringing together historians, Islamologists and other specialists in Islam, this workshop aimed to be a contribution to the field of studies on peace in Islam which remains little explored and which offers numerous research perspectives. Resolutely multidisciplinary, the workshop aimed to study peace as an Islamic concept but also as a phenomenon in multiple dimensions that must be included in a context and its developments.

CONFERENCE

« Archéozoologie à Dadan (AIUla, Arabie Saoudite): Comment les ossements relient l’histoire de la vie du passé au présent? »

March 5, 2024 at CEFREPA

Dr. Hervé Monchot is an archaeozoologist attached to UMR 8167 Orient & Méditerranée. His research project, entitled "Zoarchaeology at the service of modeling the meat diets of the Arabian Peninsula, during Antiquity and the Middle Ages. Sociocultural (religious) and environmental implications", aims in particular to fill this gap through study of bones from several archaeological sites (Jordan, Palestine, Egypt, Oman, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia). Currently, its research activity is particularly oriented towards Saudi Arabia by collaborating on numerous archaeological missions including that of Dadan (AIUla).
