READ MORE

The city of Dadan was the capital of important Iron Age regional powers. The kingdoms of Dadan and Lihyan controlled the caravan routes between the Levant and Mesopotamia. The popularized presentation will focus on archaeozoology applied to the Dadan site as a means of reconstructing and understanding the subsistence strategies and lifestyles of the Oasis' inhabitants over the last three millennia

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

Cities and circulations: Challenging theoretical frameworks in Gulf histories and geographies

29-30 May 2024, Paris, France
SciencesPo, INALCO

The conference revisits historical processes of knowledge production, immigration, and cultural exchange in colonial and post colonial geographies of the Gulf. It also uncovers histories of community, migration, language/dialect, and hinterland denials in both the making of Gulf cities and the production of their histories. The aim is to foster novel investigations that question the positionality of different actors, that humanise the landscape, and that deconstruct persistent myths, material and immaterial structures, spaces and systems that limit a critical reading on the Gulf.
